Kathie VanDeraa Should your head be level or propped when using My Pillow? I think I am doing something wrong. Thanks.

Christine Markotic Payseno I had four next surgeries in the past year. I had to sleep in a recliner for 10 months because it was too painful to lie down. My husband bought one for me out at the base and I've been able to sleep lying down, finally! I then ordered one for my son. He was a paratrooper in the 82nd Airborne and has had horrible problems with his neck and back because of. He is sleeping much better and doesn't have the horrible pain in his neck when he wakes up. Thank you My Pillow! You have literally changed our lives! That is no exaggeration!

MyPillow Kathie~ your head should feel level when you are laying on it. If it feel propped up please call that means the loft is to high for you and you are getting to much support.

Kathie VanDeraa But I am using a yellow one - I am an adult and a pillow for a 3 yr old child is too high for me? I've got a big head, too!

Kathie VanDeraa When it arrived -I tossed it in the dryer for15 min like it said to do.

Mark Betournay MyPillow, you said a big announcement is coming, is the pillow changing some way?

January 21, 2012 at 3:19pm

Wanda Scott I would like to know the answer to Mark Betournay's question as well. I saw an infomercial for the very 1st time ever for the MYPILLOW this morning and am thinking very seriously about buying one, but would like to know about the "big announcement" before I buy one. I have a tempur-pedic pillow that I've had for almost 2 years and I wake up with terrible headaches as well as terrible neck, shoulder and back pain. I had to have a disc replacement between my C-6 and C-7 in 2005 and I can't take this awful neck pain every single morning any longer....something's gotta give!!
