The Natural Remedy for Forgetfulness

100% NATURAL REMEDY FOR FORGETFULNESS!

Have you ever forgotten anything?

Here's the Problem

We've all been there before. You slowly get up out of your chair to go get something in the next room, you walk down the hall, open the door, flip on the light, walk into the room and... NOTHING! Your mind is completely blank. You silently ask yourself, why did I come here? ... what was I after? ... what am I looking for? You freeze for a moment longer, and still nothing! Have I lost my mind? You finally shrug your shoulders and go back into the other room. Then after returning for a short while you suddenly remember what it was that you were after, and then return to go get it.

Why is that?

Well here's the explanation for what just happened. You temporarily lost your thought because of a tiny issue buried deep inside your brain. You see the neurological connections in our brains don't always make a connection! It's not your fault, it just happens with age, and to almost everyone.

The neurons in our brains transmit everything we do. They are responsible for taking every thought we have and turning it into an action. Our neurons have a thin coating on them that's kind of similar to an extension cord. If you leave that electrical cord out in the sun, the rain, the hot and the cold weather for a long period of time it will eventually wear out. So just like the extension cord, as we age, the coating on our neurons gets thin and brittle, they slowly begin to crack and wear out and we begin to lose these connections. At times these connections may even die. So just like an extension cord that has worn out and won't connect when we need it, we basically short out and that's why we forget something!
